The Age of Scorpius saga has come to a close.

I think I've pretty much covered everything I needed to. So, I'm done writing about this situation for now. I will still do a break down post about High Disturbance from my standpoint as an academic writer and editor. It'll help you better understand what exactly was wrong with the writing there.

When I first started writing this, I had an outline written up. However, as I went back to recheck my source materials, I kept finding new information. So, I did leave some things out. But I still feel that I've gotten the message I wanted across. That said, there were more accounts of his I didn't really look too deeply into up until this week and I realized he's been probably doing this since his Wattpad days.

If you are interested, here are some different accounts that I found by just googling his Wattpad name and clicking on the links on these profiles.

Wattpad: Alphanix
Toyhouse: Sandria (tw furry stuff*)
Deviantart: Alphanix1x
Flight Rising: Alphanix
Trello: Alphanix
Twitter/X: Sandrialioness* & Adora
Telegram: Alphanix Writing
Google Doc: Writing for Art trades

He was going by Serena Winter at that time. It seems like that he may have skipped out on some paid writing commissions and also a paid oracle card reading (clarification of his original reading) which caused him to rebrand to Audra Winter afterward.

I might finish my agoraphobia post about him but I kinda feel it's a bit redundant at this point.

Also, I'm gonna do a master post after I go back and re-read and re-edit my stuff. Not all of us have our ten thousand hours of mastery. AAVE's copula deletion (skipping the " to be" verb) has me all kinds of messed up. Plus, since Korean puts their verb at the end of the sentence, I also try to put my adverbs at the end of my sentences too (even though it can be grammatically correct at times).

That just highlights the importance of taking your time to reread and redit your work, multiple times.

And college summer & fall season is coming up! If anyone needs some help organizing your application letters, let me know!
